Yamhill County K12 Teachers

The Yamhill Soil & Water Conservation District (district) is awarding one $600 scholarship to attend the 2018 Summer Ag Institute (SAI). Any Yamhill County K12 educator is qualified and an agriculture background is not required. The district board of directors strongly believe in this program and voted to support the cost of attendance. It is a privilege to provide this opportunity to a local teacher from your district.

In acceptance of this award we ask that the winner provide a short report to the district about their SAI experience. The district will use this information as a newsletter guest article. In addition, we would like a couple of photos to support the article, preferably taken during participation.

The district invites the successful candidate to attend its annual dinner meeting which is held in late October or early November. This year's date is yet to be determined. The annual meeting is an event to report on the year in review and recognize partners and conservation award winners. It is a good opportunity to network and learn about the district's work. You may be invited to share your SAI experience.

If you are interested in the District's SAI fScholarship, please contact Julie at 503-376-7600 or email Julie@yamhillswcd.org.

Best to you.

Summer Ag Institute

A project of the Oregon Farm Bureau Foundation for Education, the Summer Ag Institute (SAI) is a three-credit, week-long, graduate-level class through Oregon State University that educates K-12 teachers with little or no background in agriculture.

The goal of SAI is to help educators use agriculture as a context for teaching standard subjects like science, math, social studies, and English. Current, factual, and scientific information about agriculture is presented, and participants are provided with educational materials to help them incorporate what they've learned into their classrooms.
